

Sharing Information About NPF

TIPS AND GUIDELINES

How to share information with colleagues:

1. Print out the “What’s In It For Me?” overview and the Frequently Asked Questions and give it to colleagues.
2. Email the “What’s In It For Me?” overview and Frequently Asked Questions to your colleagues to their non-RCMP email addresses (see guidelines below).
3. Host a coffee meeting or invite colleagues for a beer and wings night and share the material, and why you chose NPF.
4. If you need printed handouts, please email us with your name, how many you need and address at info@npf-fpn.com and we will do our best to get them to you.

If your colleagues have questions we haven’t answered on the handout, they can find many more questions and answers at <https://npf-fpn.com/faq/>. If the question isn’t covered, please email us at info@npf-fpn.com and we’ll get back to you within 24-48 hours.

GUIDELINES FOR SHARING WITH COLLEAGUES:

The Commissioner’s office has stated that RCMP communications networks shall not be used to promote and/or advocate for or against a particular labour relations model or association and requests that members wishing to participate in these activities do so on their own time and using their own resources.

You can talk about this and share information with colleagues:

- When you’re off duty
- Before and after your shift
- During breaks
- You can share material through personal, non-RCMP email addresses and social media, and with printed handouts during your own time